Also known as the "heartbreak grape," Pinot Noir's thin-skinned, temperamental mood courts only four regions globally - and Sonoma County is one of the best. Introduced to California during the Gold Rush, we later shipped these hearty grapes east during Prohibition for home winemaking. Modern Zinfandel has garnered further infamy for its high alcohol content and fruit-driven styles. However, with a careful hand, they can be bright, fresh, spicy, and extremely food-friendly, too. We leave it to the vintners to craft these mysterious old vines to their liking.

This elegant, sexy, and highly underrated grape suffered a loss in popularity over the last few decades, partially due to the movie Sideways (I'm not drinking fin' Merlot!), but more due to the shadow of its more famous, jock of a brother Cabernet Sauvignon. These days, Merlot is back and better than ever with a new generation of winemakers and growers showing what this grape can really do.

The lovechild of Cabernet Franc and Sauvignon Blanc, this grape is a total rockstar. In 1976 a California Cabernet Sauvignon won against the best of Bordeaux's Grand Crus during a blind tasting. The "Judgment of Paris," as it came to be known, put California on the winemaking map and reversed centuries of upturned noses. Connoisseurs mature and modern will appreciate the complexity of this rich and succulent grape.
